This guidebook will help you select appropriate instructional objectives and plan instructional programs for school-age children with deficits in oral and written communication. The book will be especially useful in planning instructional programs for children with communication disorders. The book includes the following:

- Skills checklists to facilitate the identification of specific targets for basic communication skills
- Strategies for writing the IEP
- Activity suggestions relating to specific IEP goals
- Tips for developing IEP goals that are relevant to academic standards of the classroom curriculum
- Comprehensive lists of IEP objectives for developing listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills

Many of the goals in this book have been selected based on a comprehensive review of state standards for instruction in the elementary school grades.

This practical resource is a must for speech-language pathologists and special education classroom teachers. Reproducible record forms are included.

Great for developing Individual Education Plans (IEPs) for speech and language disorders, autism, developmental disabilities, and MORE.
